        (Call to order of the Court.)
             THE CLERK: Calling the matter of PG&E Corporation.
    I'll bring counsel in now, Your Honor.
 6
             THE COURT: Okay. Good morning, Mr. Slack, or good 7 afternoon for you. Admit your appearance, please?
             MR. SLACK: Yes, Your Honor. It's Richard Slack from
9
    Weil, Gotshal & Manges, for the reorganized debtors.
             THE COURT: Mr. Hamilton.
10
             MR. HAMILTON: Good morning, Your Honor. Joshua 11
12
    Hamilton of Latham & Watkins, on behalf of the reorganized debtors.
13
14
             THE COURT: Mr. Canty.
15
             MR. CANTY: Good morning, Your Honor. Michael Canty from Labaton Keller Sucharow on behalf of PERA. I'm joined by 16
    Mr. Etkin as well, who is, I believe, on screen now.
17
18
             THE COURT: Well, I'm used to seeing Mr. Etkin, I don't think I've seen you before, but maybe I have.
19 20
             MR. CANTY: It's been a long time ago, Judge. It's 21
    good to see you again.
22
             THE COURT: Okay. Well --
23
             MR. ETKIN: Good morning, Your Honor.
24
             THE COURT: Mr. Etkin, just -- you've read Mr. Slack's 25 response, what would happen if I -- I mean what -- we're here

on your letter request. What is it -- I think I know the answer, but what, specifically, would happen if I were to give you what you want? I'm not sure I know what -- you want reconsideration of the disallowance on the sustaining of the twenty-eight omnibus objection. But as to the twenty-ninth and forward, all the ones that do not involve RKS or Balpost (phonetic), what would happen other than a new deadline for response?

MR. ETKIN: Your Honor, the requests in our letter, which was a request for a status conference, effectively to implement Your Honor's appointment order -- and I apologize in advance, I'm kind of battling a cold. But we were really focused more on scheduling and advising the Court exactly what we intended to do and not to do, in particular, since we know the Court is particularly interested in that. So bottom line is we were looking to file as class -- on behalf of class plaintiff, and as interim class counsel, opposition to what the Court has described as a 12(b)(6) motion challenging the merits of the claims against -- with respect to the securities loss, against the reorganized debtors.

THE COURT: Well, but again, I understand that, and that's what I expected you to say, but let's be more specific. Let's take the first one that's -- numerically, that's the twenty-ninth. I'm not going to talk about the twenty-eighth because there's an order on the twenty-eighth, and I'll raise with you that question. Let's suppose that I let you file - -

1
    at the moment, there has to be a response by the 13th. You 3
    asked -- 4
             MR. ETKIN: Correct.
             THE COURT: -- for an extension of time. Whether it's 5
    the 13th or some other date, do I assume that you or your 6
    colleagues will file something on behalf of all the claimants that are either the subject of that twenty-ninth objection?
8
 9
             MR. ETKIN: Yes, and again, Your Honor, limited -- I don't have it in front of me -- but some of these omnibus 10 objections that were filed had more than one basis. But to the 11
    extent that the objection is based upon insufficient 12
    substantive allegations, with respect to the securities claims, yes, we would file an omnibus opposition to that motion dealing 14
15
    with that issue, which is relevant to, effectively, every 16 unresolved claim.
             THE COURT: So am I -- so let's say that there -- 17
    among the members of the twenty-ninth omnibus objection group, there is a pro se party and there's another party who's 19 20 represented by experienced counsel. Neither one of them know 21
    that you're filing anything until you file it, right?
22
             MR. ETKIN: That's correct, Your Honor, and that, 23
    frankly, is part of the point, I guess, that -- 24
             THE COURT: Well, but what -- so what happens if that 25 pro se party has just accepted an offer from PG&E of some amount -- doesn't matter what the amount is -- and the counsel 1 2 representing another member of that group allow his or her own 3 opposition, then we have two oppositions on behalf of the same creditor -- claimant? 4 5 MR. ETKIN: No, to answer your first question, Your 6 Honor, if it's resolved, it's resolved, and that claim is no 7 longer extend, which is what we've indicated from the get go, and we haven't interfered at all with that process. 8 9 THE COURT: Well, I didn't say you were interfering. Mr. Slack may say you're interfering. But what I'm saying is 10 that we can look -- I haven't taken the time but I could; I 11 could look at the twenty-ninth omnibus objection, and I could 12 see, I suspect, several pages of people's names, claimant's 13 names, and claim numbers, and reasons for the amount that 14 15 they're claiming, and the reasons for the objection. But the point is, you have that same information, but you will be 16 filing something for the benefit of those claimants, and they 17 18 will not even be aware that you're doing it. And so --19 MR. ETKIN: Well --20 THE COURT: So if claimant number one has accepted a 21 generous offer of 500 dollars from PG&E, and he's waiting for his 500 dollars but you filed an objection on behalf of that 22 claimant, what do I do from a case management point of view? 23 24 That objection is moot --MR. ETKIN: 25 THE COURT: Okay.

7 MR. ETKIN: -- as it relates to that point. 1 THE COURT: But you -- then what about the one that's 2 the claimant in that group that's represented by counsel who's 3 4 preparing his own opposition? MR. ETKIN: Well, Your Honor, I think one thing we can 5 do to deal with that issue, to the extent it becomes one, is we 6 7 can check the docket and see if that particular claimant has filed -- or their counsel, if they have one, has filed a notice 8 9 of appearance in the case. THE COURT: Well, that doesn't --10 MR. ETKIN: Then we can --11 THE COURT: That doesn't tell you that they're in 12 touch with the debtor or they negotiated something. 13 MR. ETKIN: Well, that's a separate issue, Your Honor, 14 15 in our view. If they're in touch with the debtor and negotiating something, they'll either resolve their claim or 16 not. We're not -- again, we're not looking to stop that from 17 18 happening, and if it does, if there's a resolution, well that resolution moots out anything relating to that claimant because 19 20 as we indicated, even in our 7023 motion, the class that we're 21 looking at, which would be the subject of certification, eventually, but which is now the subject of the appointment 22 order that Your Honor entered, that class is only with respect 23 24 to unresolved claims. 25 So if a claim is resolved, that's a separate resolution that they've negotiated with PG&E, and that's the end of the story with respect to that particular claimant. So if you want to --

THE COURT: Well, look, I understand that -- what you want to do, but Mr. Slack takes issue with the consequences that you're essentially revisiting my ruling -- two rulings about standing. And I haven't changed that ruling. I mean I don't -- I'm the one that accepted your argument, and over PG&E's objection, I allowed your firm and your colleagues to be class counsel on a noncertified class basis. But I didn't revisit and didn't decide to revisit the standing question.

So I guess my question to you is -- maybe this is not angels on a pin, but it's a real problem -- how do you get around the standing on behalf of any particular claimant just because you persuaded me to let you be counsel for a class to be -- that may be certified in the future?

MR. ETKIN: Well, let me, if I may, Your Honor, just take a step back for one second, with respect to how we got in front of you today. And I'm not looking to kick the can down the road, but we -- our letter was strictly intended to implement your order, and to indicate to the Court how we intended to move forward and what we -- what relief we thought, from a scheduling perspective, that the Court should consider assuming that reorganized PG&E is not inclined to consent to it.

Instead, at 9 o'clock last night, we got back what 1 amounts to a letter brief on the issue of standing. And kind 2 3 of like what happened with respect to the original hearing on the lead plaintiff lead counsel motion, leaving the 4 characterizations aside, we got into some last minute case law 5 and argument about Rule 23(q), and the Court requested, 6 7 properly so, additional briefing on that issue. We think that given the letter brief that was filed 8 9 with respect to standing at 9 o'clock last night, if the Court's going to make any decisions with respect to that issue, 10 and the scope of the standing and really the scope of the order 11 that Your Honor entered, we would like the opportunity to file 12 something with the court. And give the Court our perspective 13 on issues that we did not address in our original letter, 14 15 because our original letter was, at least in our view, Your 16 Honor, a rather simple request. THE COURT: Mr. Etkin -- Mr. Etkin. Your --17 18 MR. ETKIN: Yeah. THE COURT: -- request came to my attention at 7 19 o'clock in the morning on the 7th of February. That's all of 20 two whole day ago, right? And you asked to be heard, as I 21 recall, you asked to have a status conference before the 13th. 22 23 MR. ETKIN: Correct, Your Honor. 24 THE COURT: Which is the deadline for a lot -- a long list of the omnibus objections, a bunch of them. And I decided 25 to accommodate you and try to make that heard as quickly as possible. And I expected, I fully expected, that PG&E, Mr. Slack, would file something. So whether you say it's a letter brief or something else, it's something that was precipitated by your request and my willingness to accommodate you on an expedited basis.

So if I tell you I want a letter brief, what am I going to do, make a ruling before the 13th? I mean the question is, it seemed to me, that if I didn't do something, if I deny your request, that's the end of that. But if I granted your request, I have to do it before the 13th, or my guess is hundreds and hundreds of claimants will be impacted by that.

And so I -- I'm not blaming anybody, we have a situation that's difficult for everyone, including me. And I'm trying to figure out what happens next, so I don't complain that Mr. Slack raised legal arguments. These are nothing new; these are things that -- there's some repetition. I understand that.

But let's try it again. Let's try it a different way. If I had told Mr. Slack I didn't want to hear from him, I was going to grant you an extension, and the twenty-ninth securities claims objection can be extended to two weeks, you would do something in those two weeks. And so it seems to me, in those two weeks, you would file something that would be in the nature of a support for the claim. And again, going back to not what class action lawyers think about, but what bankruptcy lawyers think about -- and you know this, I'm repeating myself -- a claim is like a complaint, and an objection to claim is like an answer, and a motion to dismiss a debtor's proceeding is like a sufficiency objection to a claim.

And so you would, no doubt, file something that says the people in twenty-ninth securities -- omnibus securities group, have stated claims that can survive a sufficiency objection, and here's how. And then you attach the pair of compliant or something else.

We're back to the same issue. So I mean, the question is, is that proper? And the question is, and you answered my question in the negative; you haven't had any communication with the claimants. So you want me to do something that impacts the claimants, and they don't even know about it. And it seems to me that what I'm concerned about is that if a member of that group says, you know, Mr. Etkin, I'd like you to take on my representation, you could do that, and then it's -- you don't have a standing question.

MR. ETKIN: Your Honor, I'm going to turn it over to Mr. Canty in a moment because he is the Rule 23 and class action expert. I know enough to be dangerous, but I know the interplay between bankruptcy and class actions.

Let me just say this, Your Honor, we're talking about issues relating to the sufficiency of securities claims that impact each and every one of these claimants that's the subject of a sufficiency motion. This is not individual representation of a particular claimant. This is pursuant to Rule 23 and Rule 23(g). Your order, Your Honor, with respect to the appointments has to mean something in terms of what we can and should, indeed do in order to protect these, in particular, pro se claimants who may have filed proofs of claim, but in many respects they're akin to absent class members.

So maybe I'm wading into these issues a little more than I should, and I'll turn it over to Mr. Canty, but we believe the order that you entered, Your Honor, aside from being appropriate, meant something in terms of what we could do to what the Court characterized as 2,000 claimants with unresolved claims that many of which are -- appear pro se, and we're looking to do something to protect their interests, and efficiently, Your Honor's words, and effectively. That's our goal.

THE COURT: I'll be happy to hear from Mr. Canty, but let me just make the following observation, and again, Mr. Etkin, you're one of the veterans who've been on this case. We just passed the five-year mark, and so I've known you and Mr. Slack for five years in the context of this case. And so that means some of these people who are asking to get some money, lost their -- made their investment seven years ago or eight years ago, and here we are, and they may have had aspirations of getting a big payday, but they might be happy to be getting some modest, little recovery. And Mr. Slack will tell me and tell you the number of claims that have been resolved.

So it seems to me that there may be claimants in that twenty-ninth group, or the thirtieth or the thirty-first, or whatever, who would be happy to get some modest payment, and they're not going to get it if I suddenly say, well, Mr. Etkin and his colleagues can take over the representation, and you might get something several years from now. And it seems to me I shouldn't be taking that option away from those people who can make their own decision.

MR. ETKIN: Well --

THE COURT: So with that --

MR. CANTY: Your Honor --

THE COURT: With that in mind --

MR. CANTY: Your Honor --

THE COURT: -- I will ask Mr. Canty to add what he wants to add. But keep in mind, Mr. Canty, no one has given me a single precedent for a massive claims objection process that gets married up with the class action thing five years into a bankruptcy.

MR. CANTY: Well, Your Honor, thank you. And I will say that I think what we're proposing here will efficiently resolve the claims.

To answer your first question, we are not asking to act as counsel for individual claimants. And there's a distinction there that matters. If an individual claimant is in the process of negotiating with the debtors, and is willing and interested in taking whatever the debtors are offering them, they are free to do so. They don't need our permission; we have no role in that.

What we seek to do, and this is where class action law comes in -- the standing issue, number one, we'd like to brief it. And I know, Your Honor, we're on a tight schedule. We can certainly get you something Monday. But I think it's important because the law on this is nuanced. And I think if you look at the law, the standing issue is whether or not PERA has standing, which I believe the Court has determined through the appointment.

The second question is, what does that mean for the absent class members as we've described it, or those -- let's talk about the claimants. Well, PERA -- the debtors have said, well, they filed claims. Well, that's -- if you want to liken it to a class action case, that's essentially what absent class members do when the case is settled. They file trading data, it goes through the plan --

THE COURT: Yes, I know that. I know that.

MR. CANTY: But my point is --

THE COURT: But this isn't them.

MR. CANTY: I understand. My point though, Your Honor is we are seeking to adjudicate issues that will apply to everyone, and that's the most efficient way forward. We are now at the bottom of the claimants that are just unwilling to settle, right? We've got 2,000 left. Candidly, they've reached out; they've said we are not willing to, you know -- we don't -- we're not going to go forward, we want this process to go forward.

So what's the most efficient way to do that? Well, if they're represented by counsel, counsel can protect their interests. That doesn't affect what we do. What we can do for those that don't have counsel or don't file something on their behalf, is you can rule on these issues that apply to everyone. And that's the most efficient way forward.

If you say, look, this -- an issue with respect to (Indiscernible) loss causation, that will apply to everybody. That really is the most efficient way forward, not what -- and again, we are not looking to interfere with the mediation negotiation process at all. And in fact, the minute somebody takes that offer, they're essentially done.

So again, I just would reiterate, we're requesting an opportunity to brief this standing issue because there is nuance here. We're not seeking to represent them in an individual capacity. And I think if we're allowed --

THE COURT: I, again, I'm not interested in having a brief over the weekend and make a decision on Monday. So what would happen if I extend the deadline for these classes, these groups rather, that are due on the 13th? What happens? What do you brief?

MR. CANTY: Well, the debtors can file individual objections as they pertain to those --

THE COURT: Oh, it already has.

MR. CANTY: Okay.

THE COURT: That's my point. They already have.

MR. CANTY: But on a sufficiency claim, what essentially is a sufficiency claim? It's saying that they haven't made out a claim here. We're saying --

THE COURT: Mr. Canty, the debtor has filed. The reason why we're at the 28th omnibus objection is because they filed twenty-seven prior ones. No, I'm -- I may not have counted right, but the point is, there are members -- let's take the current twenty-eighth group, which just defaulted. A number of members of that group have responded, and I believe some of them have settled, and some of them that have not been defaulted, they've been rolled over for further discussion.

So there's an ongoing dialog taking place outside of the court, which is the way it should be. So if I were to grant more time, that just keeps open the time for you to do something. So what you are saying is, well, you'll file something that isn't taking over their claim but is in fact arguing their case for them.

1
             MR. CANTY: Well --
 2
             THE COURT: I don't know how we get around that.
 3
             MR. CANTY: Well, and I think that's the nuance I'm 4
    talking about, Your Honor. We're not arguing their case.
    We're arguing the case for those that have claims against the
 6
    debtor that are identical for all claimants, those issues that 7
    are identical for all the claimants.
8
             THE COURT: Okay.
 9
             MR. CANTY: And I think that's sufficient. We would respectfully submit that that's the most efficient way forward.
10
             THE COURT: Mr. Slack?
11
             MR. ETKIN: Your Honor, can I add something to that?
12
13
             THE COURT: Yes. Okay. Yes.
             MR. ETKIN: One moment, and I apologize. Because I know it's -- having two lawyers talk for the same party is often frowned at, so I appreciate the courtesy.
14
15
16
             THE COURT: I've welcomed it since the first day in 17
18
    this case, so. Thank you.
             MR. ETKIN: Since I've been involved since the first 19 20 day of the case, I recall it distinctly. I want to try to 21 answer the question because the idea of briefing the issue of standing, and look, we -- Your Honor, you ruled on standing 22
    issues previously. But none of those rulings were in advance 23
    of the appointment order that you recently -- 25
             THE COURT: No, that's true. That's true.

MR. ETKIN: And that to us at least, changed the 1 dynamic here, properly so. The debtor seems to take the 2 3 position that the order that you entered just doesn't matter. It's business as usual. And we can plow through these claims 4 the same way we've been doing it for the past five years or 5 three years, however long it's been. 6 7 We think that that has changed for the better because, Your Honor, we felt that the Court, in analyzing these issues, 8 9 had some level of concern for those claimants that are still out there that are unrepresented. And we've always taken the 10 position that it's the securities laws issue. I would urge 11 Your Honor to take a look at a letter by Carol Cookson 12 (phonetic) that was filed. It's docket number 14295, filed on 13 the 25th. I'm not going to quote it --14 15 THE COURT: I mean, then tell me the number again, please. 16 MR. ETKIN: It's 14 --17 18 THE COURT: 14295? MR. ETKIN: 14295. 19 20 THE COURT: Okay. 21 Filed on the 25th, entered on the 26th. MR. ETKIN: It really outlines what we believe is likely the position of 22 many, if not all, who assumed that once they filed the claim, 23

Case: 19-30088 Doc# 14316 Filed: 02/13/24 Entered: 02/13/24 16:58:30 Page 18

there was really nothing more they had to do. Because she even points to the fact that there's a pending class action, and I

19 thought that the Public Employees Retirement System of New 1 2 Mexico was going to handle this going forward. THE COURT: Oh, that's -- excuse me. Let me 3 interrupt. That's the creditor who I -- who said she's had --4 she's sick of the whole thing and she wants out. And we've 5 treated her claim as gone. 6 7 MR. ETKIN: No, Your Honor, that's somebody else 8 and --9 THE COURT: That's somebody else? Okay. Well, 10 then --MR. ETKIN: Yeah. If somebody wants out and doesn't 11 12 care, they're out. We're not --13 THE COURT: Well then, all right. I may have just --MR. ETKIN: We're not -- this is a different letter, 14 15 and the points that she makes in her letter are important. Now, Your Honor mentioned that, you know, a bunch of people 16 responded to the twenty-eighth objection. Very few people 17 18 responded. Over 200 people were defaulted. We respectfully don't want to see that happen again to people, with respect to 19 20 the upcoming objections, which is why without ruling on the 21 standing issue as it may exist right now or is identified by the debtor. 22 23 But in the wake of Your Honor's appointment order, we think an adjustment to the scheduling to allow the Court to 24 25 make a determination of just exactly what the Court believes we can or cannot do, or should or should not do, in the wake of the appointment order without risking a default, without risking, you know, just a bunch of people losing their claims because they don't know any better, or they were -- felt that they were relying on somebody else, or felt they didn't have to do anything more.

I can't get in their heads, Your Honor, but the idea of hundreds of people losing their claims because they default where they would not necessarily be losing their claims if they could rely on briefing put in by us on the very issues that impact all of them on the merits as far as their securities claims are concerned. That's where we're at, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Well, I've been listening to you, but I also looked again at Ms. Cookson's letter, and I agree. You've correctly stated it, and I was confusing it with another one. And she does say she wants to adopt the apera (phonetic) statements. And I don't know what PG&E has done about that letter, but I know I don't want to take time to deal with a particular creditor. I got to hear what Mr. Slack has to say.

Mr. Slack, let me let me say this, again, leaving aside the question of whether procedurally it's appropriate to reconsider the 28th omnibus objection and focusing only on going forward, I have to say there's one thing that Mr. Etkin -- and Mr. Etkin said a number of things that I don't disagree with, but one thing that I really don't disagree with is that when I made the decision over your objection to appoint the class representatives under 29 -- I'm sorry -- 23G3, I intended something to come of it. This wasn't just a paper title that was of no consequence. So with that in mind, let me give you an opportunity to say what you want to say.

MR. SLACK: Sure. Thank you, Your Honor. Again, Richard Slack, Weil, Gotshal for the Reorganized Debtors. Your Honor, I think you -- where you started this hearing is right on point, which is this is an issue of constitutional standing.
And Your Honor's ruled twice on this precise issue. And although what I heard counsel for PERA talking about is, well, now we need to brief the standing issue.

What I will say, Your Honor, is if you go back and you look at the briefing that we had and then this letter, the standing issue has been briefed. It's been briefed twice before. And what I will tell you, Your Honor, is that Your Honor got the standing issue exactly right. And there's absolutely nothing, nothing in 23G3 or in any of the cases that PERA has ever cited to you that says that being appointed interim counsel changes in any way the constitutional basis. That PERA doesn't have the ability to come in and appear for individuals that have filed separate claims in the bankruptcy.

The constitutional issue is exactly the same. And in fact, what I would tell you, Your Honor, is PERA has actually made this precise argument twice, and you've rejected it. So while PERA says, Your Honor hadn't made the appointment, what PERA has argued twice to Your Honor is that they were appointed interim and lead counsel in the District Court. And they are correct that everybody who filed here -- I shouldn't say everybody. There are a lot of people who filed here who in fact -- are and would be absent class members in the District Court. And what PERA has said to you twice, and you've rejected it twice, is that somehow being named lead counsel gave them the ability to come and appear for individuals in their separate claims.

And the fact is, is that constitutionally lead plaintiff or interim plaintiff, that doesn't change the constitutional issue. And what I heard counsel for PERA say today is they don't want to appear on behalf of the individuals who were actually subject to the omnibus objections. And that's what's necessary, however, in order to have constitutional standing; they simply do not. And I, again, I would say, Your Honor, you can go back and you can look because standing was part of what was done --

THE COURT: Look, I know that and I know that well.

But my point is that when we had the discussion about allowing

PERA to be class rep --

MR. SLACK: Yep.

THE COURT: -- there had to be something that follows from it. And I realize that the conversation didn't turn on that legal question. You were adamant, very adamant about all the other judges in the Northern District that never have done this before. And guess what? I found that that doesn't make a difference; the rule is the rule.

But I had to ask myself, well, what does that mean?

And I accepted, over your objection, PERA's request, and -- but I had to -- I mean, there had to be a reason behind it. If it really was just a titular title to give them brownie points, it was of no consequence. And so it had to mean they could do something. And I don't know what because again, I don't pretend -- as if I have to explain this to Etkin and Canty, Mr. Canty.

I don't pretend to have the expertise in class actions, but I do have the expertise in the bankruptcy world. And we have equivalent things in the bankruptcy world that work. I mean, if there's one regret about this case that's up in the top of my regrets is that somebody didn't ask to have an official committee of securities claimants appointed early. I wish the U.S. Trustee had done that, or I had known enough about class actions to have done it. And here I am five years later, regretting it because I think that would have been a wonderful solution in my opinion.

I can't do anything about that now that the horse has left the barn. But if I could magically go back, I'd say, solve the problem. We need an official committee of securities claimants, and maybe they'll hire Mr. Etkins' firm, and maybe 1 they'll hire somebody else. That's not the point. But here we 2 3 are, Mr. Slack. What's the downside to my giving Mr. Etkin and company the opportunity to see if any individual claimants want 4 5 to align themselves with the arguments that he's making? 6 Like, take for example, the letter that --MR. SLACK: Yep. 7 THE COURT: -- Mr. Etkin just pointed me to, Ms. 8 9 Cookson's letter. She says, and very politely, I'm a housewife. I don't know -- I've done a lot of things, and I 10 fully intend to adopt the complaint of PERA. Well do I treat 11 her as aligning herself with PERA or is she on her own still? 12 MR. SLACK: So Your Honor, I think there's a couple of 13 different things to unpack there, but first off, let me just 14 15 say we have no objection to PERA reaching out to claimants and asking whether they want to hire PERA to represent them. 16 That's perfectly appropriate. I mean, what's interesting, Your 17 18 Honor, is once again, we kind of hear that unrepresented 19 claimants in the bankruptcy are akin to absent class members. 20 You know, that couldn't be farther from the truth. 21 Think about, Your Honor, just think about this. Each of the claimants here, unlike an absent class member who 22 23 doesn't do anything, filed their own proof of claim. They had 24 to, under your orders, provide trading information. So they've engaged in providing trading information under the ADR 25 procedures. They had to make a decision whether to hire 1 2 counsel or not. Some did, some didn't. All of them, every one 3 of them, received a settlement offer, and the overwhelming 4 majority, even the ones that are left, either responded or negotiated to those. So they've been engaged there. 5 6 The claimants received the amendment and objection 7 procedures and were required, under Your Honor's order, to make a choice as to whether to amend or to -- whether to adopt the 8 9 PERA complaint. And every single one of them that's left, okay, has already gotten notice and made the election not to 10 adopt the PERA complaint. And the claimants received direct 11 notice of the omnibus objection. So --12 13 THE COURT: Right. MR. SLACK: -- none of those things -- none of those 14 15 things would happen, Your Honor, in an absent class member situation. They've all litigated fully in the bankruptcy, 16 exactly the way the bankruptcy was meant to be. 17 18 THE COURT: Well, they've done -- Mr. Slack, they've done the bankruptcy equivalent of filing a complaint. 19 20 MR. SLACK: They certainly have, Your Honor. 21 THE COURT: And by PG&E objecting, that's the 22 adversary bankruptcy -- adversary equivalent of filing an 23 answer. And then --24 MR. SLACK: Exactly. 25 THE COURT: And then PG&E by its sufficiency objection, has filed a 12(b)(6) motion to that complaint. And that's where we are. And that's where I -- that's where I think we are. But no, let's --

MR. SLACK: And one other point, Your Honor, just because I think it's an important one here, is there's been some discussion about everybody having the same issues. Well, everybody doesn't. Every person who filed a claim has different trading. Some -- and of course, our objections, if they're granted by Your Honor, don't affect anybody else's claim. So the flaw in what Mr. Etkin and Mr. Canty are arguing is that somehow -- and let's just take the twenty-ninth omnibus. I will tell you, Your Honor, the twenty-ninth omnibus says those folks didn't make any allegations. Okay? So we're not going to be litigating in any of those any of the substantive issues in the PERA complaint because they didn't adopt the PERA complaint. And now we're looking at what they do have in their proof of claim.

And if Your Honor disallows -- and we're only talking about the twenty-ninth right now, but if it disallows and expunges those claims, it doesn't affect any of the other claims in any of the other omnibuses. And Mr. Etkin and Mr. Canty, when they get to their omnibus, because the PERA omnibus is thirty-three, it doesn't affect the PERA omnibus one iota. We're not going to be litigating the PERA complaint in connection with the twenty-ninth omnibus.

THE COURT: Oh, I know that. I know that. Let me interrupt you. I know that if you look at the ch (Whereupon these proceedings were concluded at 3:03 PM)art Mr. Etkin put together, it starts with twenty-eight, twenty-nine, thirty, thirty-one, thirty-two and then thirty-three, and then it skips thirty-four and thirty-five because that's RKS (phonetic) and Baupost. And I don't know about the other ones. And PERA itself is the 33rd, so to me, the 33rd doesn't even have to be in that chart because PERA's representing itself, its client, its representatives, and it's got a whole schedule.

MR. SLACK: Exactly, Your Honor.

THE COURT: But Mr. Slack, you said something that frankly, I'm glad to hear. You said we have no objection if PERA wants to reach out and ask these folks if they want to come in and be represented. And maybe Mr. Etkin and colleagues, for their own reasons, don't want to. But the point is, that does solve the standing problem. And I'm inclined to say that there can't be a lot of harm for my extending the deadline by a reasonable period of time for twenty-nine, thirty, thirty-one, thirty-two, thirty-eight.

Excuse me, thirty-six and thirty-seven -- well, thirty -- leave aside thirty-seven for a moment. But all the other ones that I read are all deadlines of next week on the 13th.

If I just categorically extend that some period of time and give Mr. Etkin and company the opportunity to see if they want to pick up those claimants, then that seems to be a fair thing to go to do.

Mr. Etkin or Mr. Canty, what's wrong with that suggestion?

MR. CANTY: Well, Your Honor, certainly we'll abide by the Court's order. But under the order, we talk about having a titular title. Under 23(g)(3), it allows us to act on behalf of the putative class. That doesn't require an opt in. Right? The case law is very clear that the absent class members sit back and do nothing. And it's -- I noticed that counsel did not answer your question about Mrs. Cookson (phonetic), and she's a perfect example. This is an individual that we have that's been described -- has to enter into an adversary process against Weil Gotshal, who is not a lawyer and has to navigate this whole process. That's exactly why we made the motion. So our position is under 23(g)(3), we will act on behalf of those putative class members. So --

THE COURT: But when you say act on them, again, we're at a situation where outside of bankruptcy this would never happen. So you know what -- Mr. Canty, you weren't on the call I don't think. I was given a long list of instances about the only time you ever do a lead counsel is when you have competing counsel. I'll say, we don't have competing counsel here, but I was persuaded that there must be other times to do it. And I -- and this was -- and I used the example, this is a perfect time to do it. So when I did it, I had in mind something. I quess what I didn't have in mind was suddenly you're going to take an affirmative role on behalf of these claimants and in effect take over the prosecution of their opposition. Again, to use my analogy, take over the prosecution of their claim, because that's really what you're doing. And if there were no bankruptcy, there never would have been a claim or objection procedure. We are taking a remedy that exists in the bankruptcy world and imposing it on the class action world. And it's an odd fit. I agree, it's an odd fit.

But I don't think I can suddenly ignore the very role that we're playing where you must individually defend.

Remember, in the class action you have typically one articulated claim against the defendant. Here we had 7,000 claims against the defendant. And the defendant said a number of them are no good for various reasons. Some were out of time; some were insufficient; some were paid for; some were duplicative. You know, the whole litany. And we're down to a smaller number, but some of them will survive because they do assert sufficient claims.

So it would seem to me that a simple solution would be to everyone on those lists, do you want us, meaning your firms, to take on the prosecution of your claim? Now, whether that invokes some kind of attorney-client relationship, I can't say. And I can't pretend to know, but I can only assume that there is no analog in the class action world. And that doesn't mean we aren't going to -- we ought to come up with something.

So to me, as thinking of it not as a bankruptcy judge, but as common sense. If you have a sophisticated opposition and you have difficult legal issues, and you gentlemen on your half have very varied experience on your side. All you have to do is marry up these claimants and say, you want me to help you, I'll help you free of charge. I'll do it. But I will be -- I will take on the responsibility to represent your interests in this process.

Now, I realize there may be consequences, but you know what? There are consequences. So what? So look, what I'm inclined to do is the following. And I will simply -- and I'm prepared -- I'll give Mr. Slack one more chance if he wants to fall on his sword here. But he already said he had no objections.

I'm inclined to take no action on the 28th because it's a done deal. I'm not going to turn it into a motion to reconsider and a one sentence in a brief. If there's a proper motion to reconsider, someone with standing can make that motion, and it'll be tested on its merits.

But I will tell you, before anybody makes a motion to reconsider the 28th, it has to be -- well, what about everybody that acted on it? But I will say that I'm prepared to extend the February 13th deadline of twenty-nine, thirty, thirty-one, thirty-two, thirty-three, thirty-six -- and thirty-six, let's say four weeks. And give you a new date for a hearing. And in that, if you could send out a mass mailing, if you're willing to do it. And you can say, if you want us step up and represent your interest or however you would word it, that's something that I'll do for you. And if you don't think that's appropriate then, I guess I can't help you.

So Mr. Etkin, Mr. Canty, any comments?

MR. ETKIN: I would only say, Your Honor, that that's -- it's challenging and unwieldy.

THE COURT: What's unwieldy about it? What's unwieldy about -- you've got the mailing list. I mean, I realize unless it's bad form and it smacks of, you know, champerty or whatever the old thing is that lawyers aren't supposed to do. But -- and obviously, I'm not asking you to do something that's unethical or to do something that you don't think is proper by any means. I'm not directing you to do it. I'm saying, I think that might solve the problem. But I don't know why it's unwieldy to send a letter out and say, we're the class counsel. And if you'd like us to --

MR. ETKIN: Well, I think, Your Honor, there are challenges involved in doing that. So I -- maybe unwieldy is the wrong word. And frankly, it's because of those challenges that we wanted to introduce the Rule 23 process into this to begin with. And we took the first step when Your Honor agreed to apply Rule 23 in this case. And of course, certification remains to be resolved. But -- 3

1
 2
             THE COURT: You don't have to answer my question.
    where were you when somebody should have asked the U.S. Trustee 4
    to appoint official committee?
 5
 6
             MR. ETKIN: Well, you --
 7
             THE COURT: No, you don't have to answer that. I'm 8
    not here to criticize you.
 9
             MR. ETKIN: Yeah, we tried another way early on in the 10
    case.
             THE COURT: No, but come on, Mr. Etkin, in fairness to 11
    all of us, the highest priority then and the highest priority 12 that I still have no regrets about, is complying with the 13
    Governor's and the California's legislative mandate to do 14
15 something for the fire victims. And -- 16
             MR. ETKIN: You'll get --
             THE COURT: And if I had -- if I could do it over 17
18
    again, I would do the same for the fire victims. But I maybe 19 would say there must be some way to do something that now is 20 looming. It's -- the 800-pound gorilla is come out of the 21 closet five years later, and here we are. And this is no fun, and it's no fun for the clients, and it's no fun for the 22
23
    debtor. And I'm sure it's no fun for all the work that you 24 guys are doing. But I don't -- I just don't have a fix. So -- 25
             MR. ETKIN: All I'll say is, Your Honor, number one, you'll get not even a hint of argument from me in terms of what the priorities were with respect to this case early on, none.

I would ask Your Honor to just -- and I apologize because I don't have the pleading in front of me. But in our reply, we quoted some language from the advisory opinion as to what -
THE COURT: Hold on one second, Mr. Etkin, I just have to close the door.

MR. ETKIN: Of course.

THE COURT: Yeah. I'm sorry. Go ahead.

MR. ETKIN: No. No problem.

And again, I don't have it in front of me, but we quoted some language from the advisory opinion with respect to Rule 23(g), as to what an interim class counsel can do. And the language, if I recall correctly, was well, they can deal with motion practice, they can deal with discovery, and they can attempt to negotiate a settlement. Those were the three items on the laundry list. Well discovery is off the table now. So that's not going to happen with respect to certainly the sufficiency objections.

With respect to settlement negotiations on a classwide basis, you need two to tango with respect to that. And we don't have a dance partner with that right now.

But there is motion practice out there, and that's what we focused on in terms of what we would try to do. But I've heard Your Honor. Obviously, we have to discuss what Your Honor is suggesting internally and see whether --

 2
             MR. ETKIN: Mr. Etkin, is there any activity at all in the District court action, or is it still stuck with Judge 3 Davila's ruling in the Ninth Circuit, not ruling? Is that 4
 5 still -- 6
             MR. ETKIN: Still stuck with Judge Davila's ruling in 7
    the Ninth Circuit, not ruling.
             THE COURT: I find it frustrating that they haven't gotten a ruling from the Ninth Circuit. But again, it's not my call.
8 9
10
             MR. CANTY: Of course, it certainly would be helpful.
11
12
             THE COURT: But my point -- my question to you though -- 13
14
             MR. ETKIN: Uh-huh.
15
             THE COURT: -- and Mr. Canty -- this is again more to Mr. Canty --
16
17
             MR. CANTY: Yes?
18
             THE COURT: -- as a class action expert. If there had been no bankruptcy, I believe that Judge Davila's ruling still 19 20 would have -- there still would have been a stay of discovery pending the motions. But what other kind of -- what else could 21
    have happened? In other words, what would interim class 22
23 counsel do if there was no discovery pending the motions to 24 dismiss?
25
             MR. CANTY:
                         The case against the nondebtors in the

District court would have moved forward. We would have prosecuted that.

THE COURT: But the stay -- but if there had been no bankruptcy, wouldn't there still have been a stay pending the motions?

MR. CANTY: According to the PSLRA, that's right; they would have been stayed.

THE COURT: Got it.

MR. CANTY: But we would have gotten a decision with respect to all class members.

Your Honor, the only concern I raise is because of your order and the controlling class action jurisprudence, there are claimants that believe that they are now protected by PERA. And we saw that through the letter of Mrs. Cookson. So we're now saying we have to go out and affirmatively reach out to them to say we want to represent you as interim class counsel. But they know the world of class action in the District Court.

And their presumption, I would assume, because that is the controlling case law, that they -- I mean, the Supreme Court has said, and we quoted in our letter, an absent class action plaintiff is not required to do anything. You may sit back and allow the litigation to run its course content in knowing that there are safeguards provided for his protection. Because of the order that's been implemented, there are a number of claimants that essentially believe, because of the controlling case law, that they can sit back and do nothing and will be protected by PERA.

THE COURT: Yeah. But the point is though, that what you can't tell me is, what would one do in the interim between the sufficiency motion and the ruling on it? You can't take discovery to say that you can engage in motion practice. What motion practice? What is there to do? In other words, what's being done in regard to the 33rd omnibus objection that PERA is its own department? I mean, I'm sorry, I may be getting -- yeah. I mean, the point is, there's nothing to do.

So look, I -- to quote the Rules Committee is to almost predict with certainty there wasn't a single bankruptcy person in the room when that rule was drafted, and they never thought about it, because, again, you could line up a hundred class action experts, starting with you, Mr. Canty, and ask you how many --

MR. CANTY: I'd be low on that list, Your Honor, I wouldn't --

THE COURT: -- how many of you have been involved in a mass tort multi-thousand claim bankruptcy? And the answer is, none. Never probably because this is our one.

Look, gentlemen, I'm going to do what I said. I'm going to pick a date. And I'm going to unilaterally, on my own, issue an order that will extend the February 13th deadline for those particular groups that I've mentioned. Actually, I will include the thirty-seventh as well, even though that's a later date. And I'm going to just look at the calendar and I'm going to pick a date for roughly four weeks. I'm just going to tack four more weeks on that deadline, and I will pick a date on our PG&E regular calendar for a hearing date.

And you do what you feel is appropriate. If you want to make a motion to reconsider, if you want to do -- whatever you want to do, do what you want to do. I'm not going to take any action on the 28th because that's a done deal. And Mr. Slack is right. If you want to have that reconsidered, you have to go through the hoops for Rule 59 or 60. And I will not tell you that you should or shouldn't notify anybody, including Ms. -- the woman who's wrote her letter.

Mr. Slack, you don't have to tell me. I'm assuming that you're not going to take a default from Ms. Cookson because she essentially -- well, I'll just tell you, you got to treat Ms. Cookson as though she has informally, as a pro se party by letter, adopted the PERA complaint. So put that on the list. And you're free to try to settle with her. But I'm not going to -- and I appreciate Mr. Etkin calling to my attention that letter, because I did confuse it with the other person, and I'm just going to leave at that.

And so we have a saying here in the West, Mr. Slack, for you with your New York Yankees thing called, go Niners.
